Letter Transmitting Report of the Adjutant-General

HEADQUARTERS MARYLAND NATIONAL GUARD,
Adjutant-General's Office,

ANNAPOLIS, December 31, 1903.

To His Excellency the Governor of Maryland and to the Honorable the Members of the General Assembly of Maryland.

SIRS: In accordance with requirements of Article 65, Section 29, Public General Laws of Maryland, I have the honor to submit herewith the fiscal reports of this department for the years 1902 and 1903, together with a detailed statement showing the amounts and condition of the United States and State property in possession of the State; also a full report of the Commanding-General, First Brigade, the Commander of the Naval Brigade, and reports of the several staff officers connected therewith; also the report of Lieutenant-Colonel Walter S. Schuyler, United States Army, the officer detailed by the United States Government to examine into and report upon the condition of the Maryland Militia in accordance with the requirements of Section 14 of the Act of Congress, approved January 21, 1903.

A copy of the fiscal report for the year 1902 was submitted to the Governor, as required by law, at expiration of that year.

Armories.

This is a subject of much importance to the State and National Guard, and I desire to call special attention to the necessity of providing suitable buildings for the companies of the First Infantry. This regiment, composed of regimental headquarters, a band of thirty members and twelve full companies stationed in different sections of the State, stands in great need of suitable buildings for armories in which company commanders can store and care for the United States and State property issued to them, as well as for the drill and instruction of their men; and, until such buildings are provided, the First Regiment—particularly the officers responsible for the equipment, instruction and discipline of their commands—must continue to labor under very great disadvantages compared with the remainder of the Guard. For the present efficient strength and soldierly bearing of this regiment—as displayed and remarked upon by many during our last annual encampment—much praise is due to its able commander who, since his promotion to its colonelcy, has labored unceasingly to make it efficient and bring it up to the standard required by law. This regiment is composed of some of the best material in the State and only requires just recognition—such as has been shown to the Fourth and Fifth Regiments and Troop “A”—to make of it an organization second to none in the State.

The Fourth Regiment, composed of regimental headquarters and twelve full companies, has an armory in Baltimore, but it is much too small, requires extensive repairs, and in time of need would not furnish adequate quarters for the entire regiment. Looking at this matter from an economical as well as a military point of view, it would seem best, as soon as practicable, to abandon this building, and build a more suitable armory for this regiment.

The Fifth Regiment is now occupying its new armory, a magnificent structure, with all the necessary company-rooms, storage-rooms, and a drill surface of some sixty thousand square feet. Everything, which mechanical ingenuity could devise, has been done to make this building one of the finest in the country, and, when finally completed, will equal in architectural beauty, completeness of detail and substantiality of construction any armory in the United States. It will, however, require approximately, some fifty thousand dollars to complete it, and I earnestly recommend that this amount be appropriated as well as an annual appropriation sufficient to heat, light and meet other demands necessary to a proper care of a State building of this size.

The Legislature of 1902 made an appropriation of fifty thousand dollars for the purchase of a drill ground and construction of an armory for Troop “A,” which has been practically completed and is now occupied by the Troop. This armory is situated at Pikesville, Md., and consists of a tract of 13 acres of land, an administration building, riding hall—200 by 100 feet in size—and a stable capable of accommodating 20 animals. It is well constructed and could not be more admirably adapted to the needs of a troop of calvary.

Rifle Range.

The long-felt want of a suitable tract of land for a rifle range for the use of our troops, for which I have labored incessantly for years, has at last been secured, and is now in process of construction and will be in readiness for occupancy and use in time to meet the demands of the coming target practice season. In time, with judicious management, this range can be made very nearly self-supporting. I am under deep obligations to the Brigade Commander General Lawrason

Riggs; his chief of ordnance, Major Samuel J. Fort, and Captain Joseph W. Shirley, Troop "A," for able assistance in locating the ground and preparing plans, etc., for its construction.

Encampment.

The annual encampment of the Guard for 1903 was held at Belair, Maryland, from July 9 to 19, inclusive—eleven days. Both officers and men responded to the call of the brigade commander in such numbers as to render the encampment a success, and although much hard work was exacted, every duty was cheerfully and conscientiously performed in such a soldiery manner as to call forth many satisfactory expressions of admiration from the army officers detailed by the Secretary of War to overlook and report upon the condition, efficiency, equipment and discipline of our troops. The detail of these United States Army officers, Major John F. Guilfoyle and Captain Horace M. Reeve, above referred to, was made in accordance with the requirements of Act of Congress, approved January 21, 1903, generally known as the "Dick Bill." (I especially call attention to their report, a copy of which is submitted herewith.) This new enactment, looking to the better organization of the militia, promises changes favorable to the citizen-soldiery of the country, but requires additional legislation to render it satisfactory as well as effective in some of its features. I am much grieved that my long and continued illness prevents me from giving my views at length regarding this law and its ultimate results upon the militia of this State.

Arms and Equipments.

The Maryland National Guard is now armed with the United States magazine rifle, caliber 30. The old Springfield rifles and equipments pertaining thereto, with little loss to the State, have been called in and returned to the National Government, and I point with pride to the fact that our soldiers are now clothed, equipped and generally cared for in a manner perfectly satisfactory to both the officers and their men.

Appropriations.

This is a subject of much importance to the well being of the Guard, and I cannot too earnestly recommend an increase. The present appropriation—$50,000 per annum for the land forces and $8,000 per annum for the Naval Brigade—is, under the constantly growing demands of the several organizations of the Guard, totally inadequate to their proper support, and should be increased to at least $75,000 per year for the land forces, and $10,000 per year for the Naval Brigade.

The National Guard of the entire country has materially changed within the last five years. It has been brought up to a high standard of efficiency which calls for both time and labor, and the amount of work exacted from both officers and men is very much greater than was expected and required of them a few years ago. In addition to the former routine much time is now demanded for instruction and practice on the target range. This increase in the amount of time and work demanded by the State of its militia carries with it a necessary increase in the cost of maintenance; moreover, the various organizations provided for in the State militia law, are now, for the first time, all in simultaneous existence. To maintain an advancing standard of efficiency in an increased State force absolutely demands an increase in the militia appropriation.

Strength of the Guard.

The law allows three regiments of infantry, of twelve companies each, one separate company of infantry, a troop of cavalry, a signal corps and a hospital corps, all not to exceed 2,650 men.

The Naval Brigade constitutes a portion of the Maryland National Guard, and is authorized to consist of six divisions. Only five, however, have been organized and equipped.

For strength of the land forces see Report of the Brigadier-General Commanding, First Brigade, M. N. G., page 59.

The following table gives the strength of the Naval Brigade up to December 31, 1903:

My best thanks are due and are herewith cordially extended to both officers, men and employees, for their loyal support rendered me during my entire administration.

Very respectfully,

JOHN S. SAUNDERS,
Adjutant-General.

Decrease.....

For the first time since the passage of the new State Militia Law the organizations therein required, except the battery of artillery, are now in completely organized existence.

The passage by the Congress of the United States of the National Militia Law (Act of January 21, 1903) was the most important event in its effect upon National Guard interests of the period covered by this report. Under the provisions of this Act this Brigade was inspected by Lieutenant-Colonel Walter S. Schuyler, Second United States Cavalry, during April and May, 1903. The report of this inspection will be published, I presume, by the Adjutant-General of the State. As the Brigade proved to be "sufficiently armed, equipped and uniformed for active service in the field," the State was able to draw from the United States Government in cash on account of our annual allotment an amount sufficient to cover the pay of officers and the entire cost of transportation and subsistence of all troops at the State encampment held in July last. Under this law all the Springfield rifles, caliber .45, have been turned in, and magazine rifles and carbines, caliber .30, with accoutrements, have been drawn and issued. The passage of the law was welcomed by the entire National Guard of Maryland, and its application has produced good and only good in this State. It is to be hoped that during the year of 1904 manœuvres may be held under its provisions at some point sufficiently accessible to allow part or all of the troops from this State to participate. The interest shown by the War Department in working out the provisions of the bill for the best interests of all concerned furnishes an answer to much of the thoughtless criticisms heard in some quarters at the time of its passage.

Co-operation between the National Guard organizations of the several States could only be brought about through Federal supervision. Moreover, such supervision supplies a common standard of efficiency by which all State organizations can be measured, and the comparison so made must furnish a stimulation to constant betterment.

Militia organizations from top to bottom are in constant need of fresh impulses to keep alive in them the spirit of improvement and to ward off the danger of a growing self-complacency. I look to the National Militia Law to supply this need, and regard it as one of its most valuable features.

No branch of military training has been so lamentably neglected in this State as that of small arms practice. And yet it is to the results which can be attained only through such practice that the Acting Adjutant-General of the Army refers to in his recent report, when he said: "If military efficiency is rated at 10, then  $8\frac{1}{2}$  of these points is accurate rifle shooting." Our excuse for this neglect has been the want of a proper rifle range. This excuse is now invalid. The State has leased for a term of years, with option to purchase, a tract of land near Glenburnie, on the Annapolis and Baltimore Short Line Railroad, on which the owners have constructed a range according to plans prepared by State officers, and which are described in the report of the Brigade Inspector of Small Arms Practice, submitted herewith, to which special attention is invited. Throughout the Brigade one-fourth of the time is now consumed in instruction in the care and mechanism of the rifle and in elementary instruction in aiming, sighting and position drills. As soon as the weather conditions permit the range will be opened and systematic attendance thereat required.

Inspections of the Brigade have been made by the Inspector-General of the Brigade, and show a decided improvement in conditions, especially in matters of discipline and administration.

Two encampments and a practice march were held during the period covered by this report. The First Regiment was encamped at Belair for one week, August 2 to 9, 1902, and a report thereon made by its commanding officer is enclosed.

A platoon from Troop "A," under command of Lieutenant C. Lyon Rogers, made a practice march of nine days from Pikesville, Md., to Charlestown, W. Va. In their road work they averaged thirty (30) miles a day, men and horses standing the trip well.

A Brigade Encampment was held at Belair from Thursday, July 9, to Sunday, July 19, 1903. The camp site was selected by a board appointed by the Adjutant-General of the State. The two reasons influencing the board in choosing this place over others examined were the excellent water supply afforded by the local water company, and the fact that the surrounding country being high and rolling, was well adapted for field exercises. Two troops of the Second United States Cavalry, under command of Major Augustus B. Bloxsom, were present during the entire encampment, and participated in all camp routine and field exercises. Captain Harry G. Trout and Captain John P. Wade were the troop commanders. The presence of the regular soldiers was a source of interest and profit to all, and by their friendly co-operation they contributed much to the success of the encampment. We were also most fortunate in having Major John G. Guilfoyle, Twelfth United States Cavalry, and Captain Horace M. Reeve, Third United States Infantry, assigned by the War Department to attend the encampment in a critical and advisory capacity. They were ready at all times to render any assistance asked, and probably the most valuable general feature of the encampment was the series of talks given almost nightly by these two officers in a large tent at brigade headquarters. These talks were principally preparatory to and critical of the field exercises that were held, but also dealt with subjects of general military information.

The entire time of the camp was given up to instruction in practical field work, as far as conditions permitted. Two sets of exercises were undertaken. The first was the employment of a regiment of infantry as an outpost for an imaginary larger command, which when established was relieved by another regiment of infantry, followed by an attack of cavalry. The other was a contact of opposing forces, in which all troops were employed.

The attitude of the landowners of Harford county cannot be too highly commended. Without exception they allowed the use of their property for the field exercises without charge beyond actual damages, which amounted to less than one hundred dollars.

To the faithful and intelligent support given me by my staff I am under many obligations.

Very respectfully,

LAWRASON RIGGS,
Brigadier-General.

Report of the Inspector-General First Brigade.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE, M. N. G.

BALTIMORE, October 15, 1903.

To the Brigade Commander, Baltimore, Md.

SIR:—I have the honor to report as follows on the operations of this department since November 29, 1901:

Under date of February 20, 1902, I made a written report of inspection of Companies B, H, D, E, G and M, First Regiment Infantry.

On August 7, 1902, the camp of the First Regiment was inspected at the fair grounds, near Belair.

Inspection of Fourth and Fifth Regiments Infantry, Troop "A," and First Separate Company, was made June 17-21, 1902.

During the latter part of April and the early part of May, this year, I accompanied Lieut.-Col. W. S. Schuyler, Second United States Cavalry, during part of his tour of inspection.

Daily inspections were made of the camp at Belair, where the entire Brigade was encamped from July 9 to 19, on the farm of a Mr. McCormick, about one and one-half miles from the railroad station. The land was admirably suited for such a purpose.

The water, of the best kind, was obtained from the town supply.

The surrounding country, being of a rolling character, well wooded, and with numerous roads, offered advantageous opportunities for several problems. This instruction, I believe, has proved a most valuable lesson to all concerned, and it is to be regretted that it is not feasible to have more extended order manœuvres.

Garbage was daily collected and disposed of by contract.

The discipline of the command was excellent.

Sentry duty was well performed; by way of comparison, it was as well done the second day of the encampment as the last day of the encampment two years ago—at the latter, daily improvement was noticeable.

The police of the camp was excellent.

It is to be hoped that at the next encampment no time will be lost in digging a system of ditches, to prevent the swampy condition that existed about one part of the grounds of the Fifth Regiment.

The sinks, at first, were entirely inadequate; after changes and additions were made no further trouble was experienced.

On breaking camp, in contrast to two years ago, care and pride were exercised to leave the grounds in a most satisfactorily clean condition.

The review given His Excellency the Governor was well performed in every detail.

Much improvement was noticed in the manner of conducting ceremonies.

From a military standpoint, I do not think a more satisfactory encampment was ever held by the National Guard of this State or of any other one.

Very respectfully,

CHARLES F. MACKLIN,

Colonel and Inspector-General First Brigade, M. N. G.

Report of the Chief Surgeon First Brigade.

BALTIMORE, October 20, 1903.

To the Adjutant-General First Brigade, M. N. G.,

Baltimore, Md.:

SIR: I have the honor to report that the Medical Department of the First Brigade, M. N. G., gave a very good account of itself during the week the Brigade was in camp at Camp John S. Saunders, Belair, Maryland. The new United States Army medical equipment was in use for the first time, and we found that it worked very satisfactorily. Some few additions were necessary in the way of medical supplies, and a list of the same has already been referred to your headquarters.

The medical work of the different hospital corps of the Fourth and Fifth Regiments showed evidences of careful drill and attention on the part of their officers. It is only proper to state that the good showing of the hospital corps of the Fifth Regiment reflected in a marked degree the untiring devotion of the late Major Crim in his efforts to develop a hospital corps of the highest order.

The general health of the camp was excellent; but one case of serious illness occurred during the entire encampment, and that was a case of scarlet fever, for which, of course, the camp was not responsible. This patient was shipped to his home in Baltimore in a special box car by the kindness of the officials of the M. & P. Railroad. There were never more than three or four cases in the Brigade hospital at any one time, and frequently none at all.

The hygiene of the different regimental corps was in general excellent. This was especially noticeable in the Fourth Regiment.

Owing to the heavy rain in the early part of the encampment, the grounds, particularly at one end of the Fifth Regiment's camp, were quite wet. This was quickly remedied, however, by proper ditching and the transference of one battalion to higher ground.

The water supply of the camp was excellent, both in quantity and quality. The surface of the ground lent itself very readily to drainage, and the camp was most satisfactory from every point of view, so far as the health of the command was concerned.

Very respectfully,

JOHN M. T. FINNEY, M.D.,

Report of Chief Commissary First Brigade.

BALTIMORE, MD., December 7, 1903.

To the Adjutant-General, First Brigade, M. N. G., Baltimore, Md.

SIR:—In compliance with the request of the Brigade Commander I have the honor to submit my report of the Commissary Department at Camp John S. Saunders, Belair, Md., July 9 to 19, inclusive.

The number of enlisted men, musicians and servants to whom rations were furnished is shown in Statements A, B, C. Statement D gives classification of subsistence supplies.

In addition there were eighteen men sixteen days, and ten men eleven days, known as the Pioneer Corps, preparing and breaking camp, packing State property, etc., making a total number of men in this corps equivalent to three hundred and ninety-eight days work of one man. To these were furnished from this department rations amounting to $140.60.

The gross amount expended for subsistence, labor and incidentals was $4,753.92, from which should be deducted the amount furnished the Pioneer Corps, $140.60—making the net amount expended for rations, etc., for the camp proper, $4,613.32.

The total number of daily rations issued (as shown in Statements B and C) was 18,911, at a cost of 24.39 cents per single ration—notwithstanding the increase cost of rations the cost per capita was decreased 3.07 cents—which bears out my prediction made in my last report, i. e., a camp held under more normal conditions than the Queenstown encampment would show a marked reduction in the cost of rations.

I desire to thank the various commissaries and my assistants for their earnest efforts to make this department a success. Special credit is due, however, to the Regimental Commissary of the First Regiment, whose watchfulness in his own command assisted very materially in the savings accomplished.

Very respectfully,

F. W. COALE,
Major and Chief Commissary.

Report of Chief of Ordnance First Brigade.

HEADQUARTERS FIRST BRIGADE, M. N. G.,

BALTIMORE, MD., October 1, 1903.

To the Adjutant-General, First Brigade, M. N. G.,Baltimore, Md.

SIR: In compliance with the request of the Brigade Commander, I have the honor to submit herewith my report upon the questions about which information was desired:

First. The general character of rifle, carbine and revolver practice as at present held in the Guard.

An earnest effort has been made to conduct systematic practice with rifle and carbine under conditions not only unsatisfactory but discouraging. The only available range has been that at Fort McHenry, and this having but one target and three ranges, two hundred, three hundred and five hundred yards, has proven of but little service, though most thankfully accepted in default of something better by those members of the Guard who have kept up their interest and enthusiasm under the most trying circumstances. Much credit is due these officers and men, who, refusing to be discouraged, have kept alive the flagging interest in rifle shooting. Their earnest and untiring efforts along this line have done much towards securing the excellent range now being built by the State.

Dismounted revolver practice by Troop "A" has been carried on in the most modern manner, resulting in a large number of very excellent revolver shots being developed among the members of the organization. Now that the Troop has a good riding hall, mounted practice with blank cartridges can be had; and it is quite probable that the new range can be used to give mounted practice with ball cartridges, without danger to the surrounding community.

Revolver practice by the officers of the three regiments has not been systematically carried out, and it must also be stated that in the past scanty provision has been made for such practice. Revolver practice in a properly constructed indoor range should prove a pleasant recreation for both officers and men, to say nothing of the practical utility of a knowledge of the weapon in case of necessity. It is hoped that the facilities to be afforded in the future for such practice will develop interest in the use of this weapon as well as the rifle and carbine.

Second. The qualifications obtained by officers and men of the Guard under the present system, the number and class of qualifications by organizations.

The qualifications given for rifle and carbine firing, under the present regulations, are as follows :

Third Class. Those failing to report at the range during the season.

Second Class. Those reporting at the range, but fail to secure two scores of twenty out of a possible twenty-five, at one hundred yards.

First Class. Those who secure two scores of twenty out of a possible twenty-five at one hundred yards, and those who fail to secure the grade of marksman.

Marksman. Those who score twenty or twenty-one out of a possible twenty-five in each of two scores of five shots each, at each range of two hundred, three hundred, five hundred and six hundred yards.

Sharpshooter. Those who score twenty-two or better at the above ranges, and in the same manner as above.

Distinguished Expert. Those who have secured the grade of sharpshooter, and have scored twenty or better (possible twenty-five) twice at each range of 800, 900 and 1,000 yards.

There being no available range where such distances could be obtained, the six-hundred-yard range has not been required in either the grade of marksman or sharpshooter and the grade of distinguished expert has existed on paper only for the same reason.

During the season of 1902, extending from April to November, there were 368 officers and men reported at the range belonging to Fort McHenry, divided among the city organizations as follows :

Fifth Regiment.....	205
Fourth Regiment.....	145
Troop "A".....	18

Out of this number there were qualified as follows:

	1st Class.	2d Class.	Marks- men.	Sharp- shooters.
Fifth Regiment.....	146	30	6	23
Fourth Regiment.....	145	25	4	14
Troop "A".....	6	2	0	10
	<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>	<hr/>

During the present season (1903) the Fort McHenry range has been closed for thirty days by orders of the Post Commander and a ten-day encampment of the entire Brigade has interfered very materially with rifle practice, and only the most enthusiastic men have attended with much regularity. As the season is not closed at this time the records of those reporting at the Fort McHenry range are not given here.

Company B, of Hagerstown, is the only company of the First Regiment conducting anything like systematic practice with the rifle, and Captain Fisher deserves great credit for his excellent work in this line of military duty. The company has secured a two-hundred-yard range and the attendance has been good. As no official reports of this practice have been received by the Brigade Inspector of Small Arms Practice no further mention can be made of its results.

Each company of the First Regiment, with the exception of the two stationed at Annapolis, are separated such a distance from each other that separate ranges are a necessity, and while several companies of the regiment have been in existence but a short time, it would seem proper for the company officers to bestir themselves to secure locations near their stations where suitable ranges could be built, if only for two hundred yards. A reduced rate on the Baltimore and Annapolis Short Line would enable both the companies at Annapolis to frequently use the new State range at Glenburnie.

Qualifications with the revolver are as follows:

Fourth Class—Those not reporting at the range.

Third Class—Those who fail to score fifty, out of a possible seventy-five at twenty-five yards, on the "A" target, reduced for one hundred yards.

Second Class—Those who score fifty as above.

First Class—Those who score nineteen to twenty-two, possible twenty-five, twice at twenty-five yards; fifteen to nineteen, possible twenty-five, twice at fifty yards; sixteen to twenty, possible twenty-five, twice at seventy-five yards; fourteen to nineteen, possible twenty-five, at one hundred yards; the first two on "A" target reduced, the last two on "A" target.

Expert Class—Those who score twenty-three or better twice at twenty-five yards, twenty or better twice at fifty yards, twenty-one or better twice at seventy-five yards, and twenty or better twice at one hundred yards, same targets as above.

During the season of 1902, out of a total membership of 55, there was qualified with the revolver, in Troop "A," as follows:

Fourth Class.....	25
Third Class .....	16
Second Class.....	6
First Class.....	4
Expert Class.....	4

Third. A resume of the work of the board of officers appointed by the Adjutant-General of Maryland to select and recommend a site for a permanent rifle range, and also to formulate regulations for the government of rifle, carbine and revolver practice in the Maryland National Guard.

In 1901 the Adjutant-General of Maryland appointed a board of officers, consisting of Brigadier-General Lawrason Riggs, Lieutenant-Colonel J. Frank Supplee, Major L. M. Rawlins and Captain J. W. Shirley, their duty being to find a suitable site for a permanent rifle range, as well as to formulate rules to govern rifle practice in the Guard that would be as near up to date as possible. No time was lost by the board, and as fast as a site would be brought to their notice it would be inspected and for the most part condemned, either because of its inaccessibility or its being too near habitations to be safe, or there not being enough space, until finally a place was found near Glenburnie, Anne Arundel County, eight miles from Baltimore, on the Annapolis Short Line, near enough to be within reasonable reaching distance of Baltimore, yet in a neighborhood sparsely settled, where it is safe to use the United States magazine rifle. After due consideration of this location one hundred and twenty-five acres of land were finally leased by the State and a force of men put to work clearing the necessary ground for the range proper. This takes about twenty-six acres, and except for some grading and leveling it has proven to be an ideal site for its purpose.

From a stationary firing line just at the edge of a beautiful grove, the range extends a few degrees east of south, in one unbroken sweep one thousand yards. The butts for each distance are placed en echelon, so that it will be possible to use every target on the range at one time, if necessary. The plans for the range were provided by Captain J. W. Shirley, and represent the most advanced ideas in its entire equipment. There will be six two-hundred-yard targets, three at three hundred, three at five hundred, two at six, two at eight, two at nine, and two at one thousand yards—twenty in all—thus providing for forty men shooting at one time, if the occasion demands. Provision is also made for skirmish-firing, which can be done in squads of ten men without interfering with the short or mid-range targets. It is thought possible to use this skirmish ground for mounted pistol practice, if a special day can be set aside for such work. A modern revolver range with targets for 25, 50, 75 and 100 yards will be placed at one end of the firing-line.

Just behind the firing line is a grove containing about fifteen acres, where it is proposed in time to erect a handsome clubhouse, and where a company can be camped very comfortably while receiving instruction.

Back of the thousand-yard butt the State will control nearly a mile of land, thickly covered with woods, which makes this range as nearly safe as such a place can be; and, once equipped, Maryland will have one of the very few first-class ranges in America—a range that should be a source of pride to the State as well as a school where the citizen soldiers may learn to shoot, and, instead of lingering in the background in the great national matches, take their proper position well to the front.

The board of officers already mentioned formulated a set of rules and regulations, which were adopted and used for the past season. These rules, while as good as the best of State rules, will probably be entirely superseded by a set promulgated by the War Department for the use of the militia of the several States. The general Government being desirous of equipping each State alike, also desires that the course of instruction in small-arms practice and the qualifications shall be alike in each State, and there can be no doubt of the value of such similarity.

With the foregoing in view, I have the honor to recommend the following measures for the encouragement of small-arms practice by the members of the Maryland National Guard.

First. The adoption of "Special Course C," as promulgated by the War Department of the United States Army, for the government of small-arms practice in the Maryland National Guard.

Second. Provision for thorough instruction of officers and men in sighting, aiming and position drills as laid down in the Firing Regulations United States Army; practice in the use of the magazine with dummy cartridges; the theory underlying the use of the sights at each range under ordinary conditions; care of the rifle, cleaning, dismounting and assembling the bolt mechanism, etc., and a course of gallery practice with reduced charges, standing, sitting, kneeling and prone, using the sights for all ranges up to 1,000 yards.

Third. Provision for a range of at least two hundred yards for each company of the First Regiment, and where it is found impossible to secure a range, the use of miniature targets and reduced charges outdoors.

Fourth. Provision for revolver practice by all commissioned and non-commissioned officers, the Hospital and Signal Corps.

Fifth. Recognition by the State of all first-class and expert revolver shots, by appropriate medals or decorations.

Sixth. Provision for cash prizes to be distributed as team and individual prizes, in addition to the medals issued by the State to all marksmen, sharpshooters and distinguished experts.

Very respectfully,

S. J. FORT,

Chief of Ordnance and B. I. S. A. P.

SIR: I have the honor to herewith submit my report on the movement of troops to and from Camp John S. Saunders, Belair, Md., July 9 to 19, as requested in your communication dated September 22, 1903.

In compliance with Special Orders No. 22, Adjutant-General's Office, dated Annapolis June 22, 1903, also letter from Brigade Headquarters dated June 20, 1903, I reported to the Brigade Commander for instructions. Under verbal instructions from the Brigade Commander, I proceeded to make contracts with various transportation companies (as the Assistant to the Chief Quartermaster) to transport the companies of the First Regiment from their respective locations throughout the State to Baltimore City, en route to the State Encampment, Belair, Md., in pursuance of General Orders No. 5, Adjutant-General's Office, Camp Saunders, dated Annapolis, Md., June 15, 1903.

At the request of the Governor and Commander-in-Chief, the Brigadier-General commanding directed that Companies "G" and "M," First Infantry, be allowed to go to Annapolis on July 13th, and they to return to camp in time to participate in the regimental parade of that evening, as per letter dated Headquarters First Brigade, M. N. G., Camp John S. Saunders, July 11, 1903.

The following arrangements were made by the Acting Chief Quartermaster of the Brigade, and issued transportation for fifty-one officers and men, who left Belair, Md., via Maryland and Pennsylvania R.R. at 7.40 A.M., July 13th, arriving at North avenue and Oak street, 8.40 A.M., on special cars provided by the United Railways and Electric Co. to Camden Station. Left Camden Station via Baltimore and Annapolis Short Line R.R. at 8.55 A.M. These two companies returned to Camp Saunders via same route, leaving Annapolis at 3.10 P.M., arriving at Belair at 6 P.M.

Cost for transportation on this account was as follows:

United Railways and Electric Co. Special cars.....	15 00
Baltimore and Annapolis Short Line R.R. Fifty-one men. Rate per capita, 75 cents round trip.....	38 25
Total.....	$78 75

Arrangements were also made with the Maryland and Pennsylvania R.R. Co. to transport all the officers' baggage from the various city armories, including the baggage of the officers of the First Regiment, upon their arrival at the different railroad stations and steamboat wharves.

In pursuance to General Orders, No. 9, C. S., Section 4, my title was changed from Assistant to the Chief Quartermaster to that of Acting Chief Quartermaster, First Brigade, from July 9 to 19, both dates inclusive.

In pursuance to General Orders No. 23, C. S., Headquarters First Brigade, Maryland National Guard, Camp John S. Saunders, July 17, 1903, the troops of this Brigade left camp and returned to their respective stations, as follows:

Company "L," First Infantry, left Belair at 12 o'clock noon, Saturday, July 18, on a special car via Maryland and Pennsylvania Railroad for Baltimore, thence left Baltimore via Chester River Steamboat Company at 2.30 P.M. for Centerville, Md. The remaining companies of the First Infantry left Belair via Maryland and Pennsylvania Railroad in two sections on Saturday, July 18, at 3.45 P.M. for Baltimore, Md. Upon their arrival in Baltimore they proceeded for their respective stations as follows:

Company "D" proceeded direct to its armory at Belair.

Companies "F" and "I," via Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic R. R., left Pier No. 4 Light-street Wharf at 7.30 A.M., Sunday, July 19.

Companies "G" and "M," via Baltimore and Annapolis Short Line R. R., left Camden Station at 4.10 P.M.

Company "K," via Baltimore and Ohio R.R., left Camden Station at 4.15 P.M.

The Regimental Band, upon arrival in Baltimore, reported to the commanding officer of Company "H," First Infantry, and proceeded with that company to Westminster.

Companies "F" and "I," First Infantry, upon arrival in Baltimore, proceeded to the old armory, Fifth Regiment, and were quartered there until Sunday morning, July 19, 1903, there being no means of transporting them to their stations on Saturday, July 18, 1903.

The First Infantry was delayed about 45 minutes in leaving Belair on its return trip, caused by the loading of the baggage on account of a very heavy rain storm, but this could have been readily overcome if the Acting Quartermaster of the Regiment had been watching as to the proper loading of the baggage.

The Fourth Regiment Infantry left Belair via Maryland and Pennsylvania R.R. on Sunday, July 19, in three sections; first section left at 9 A.M.; the two other sections followed ten minutes apart.

The Fifth Regiment Infantry left Belair via Maryland and Pennsylvania R.R. on Sunday, July 19, in three sections; first section left Belair at 2 P.M.; the two other sections followed ten minutes apart.

Troop "A," M. N. G., left Belair via pike, in company with two troops from Second United States Cavalry, early Sunday morning.

The First Separate Company left Belair on a special car attached to Train No. 52 at 4.30 P.M.

In reference to the transportation of the troops to and from Camp John S. Saunders, as far as this department was concerned, all arrangements were very satisfactory, and the transportation companies made every effort to move the troops promptly and comfortably, with the exception of the delay caused by the Quartermaster's Department of the First Regiment, which somewhat inconvenienced them when they arrived in Baltimore, as the delay allowed them a very limited amount of time in which to make their connections with the other roads. I do not think that I can offer any better suggestions for the manner of contracting for transportation other than the way we proceeded at this time, and that was to request the various transportation companies to furnish the lowest possible rates on a stipulated number of men from the various points, and where there are competing lines to accept the Company furnishing the lowest rate, the letters themselves taking the place of any forms of contract that could be formulated. I do not consider that we have enough use for any specific forms, and, besides, they would cause more or less unnecessary red tape.

Following is a statement showing the total number of men transported each way by the various transportation companies, showing the amount paid to each; also the apportionment of the cost between the United States Government and the State of Maryland:

While Camp John S. Saunders was my first experience in connection with the Quartermaster's Department, I desire to make a few remarks in connection with several matters pertaining to the Department.

Quartermaster's teams were all hired from individuals; therefore, we experienced more or less trouble in having them report each morning on time, and in various other respects. I respectfully recommend that, if it is possible, that a sufficient number of wagons and trucks be procured from the United States Government to meet the needs of the Brigade; that the horses be hired at each Camp, and the drivers be detailed from the various commands. I believe that under these conditions the hauling, etc., in the Quartermaster's Department could be conducted more satisfactorily, as well as more economically.

Horses and Stables—In this connection a great deal of trouble was experienced at this camp on account of inadequate facilities for their protection. I would suggest that in future camps provision be made for the building of sheds with board roofs and the sides protected from the weather with old canvas; if procurable. If not, the sides should also be boarded unless proper stalls can be procured in the immediate neighborhood.

Garbage—The manner of disposing of garbage at this camp, was, I think, the best arrangement of any ever had at any previous State encampment; two double team wagons were hired from the Baltimore Sanitary Contracting Co., which seemed to meet all the requirements throughout the camp. After the refuse was loaded on the wagons it was hauled about a mile from camp and dumped, the driver spreading it and sprinkling same with lime.

Quartermaster's Stores—The manner of handling the Quartermaster's stores at this camp were very unsatisfactory. In the first place the issuing of stores to the various commands of the Brigade should be entirely under the control of the Chief Quartermaster of the Brigade, the Quartermaster General's Department should surrender stores and take receipts for same from the Chief Quartermaster, he in turn issuing them to the Quartermasters of the various regiments, and not to the company commandants, as was done at Camp Saunders, and the issuing of clothing and accoutrements in camp should by all means be discouraged. The various commands should be fully equipped before they proceed to an encampment, and only such camp equipage as is necessary should be issued during the encampment, as the periods of an encampment are so short it is utterly unnecessary to require the Quartermaster's Department to carry clothing, etc., and issue them during the camps.

Servants—Increased and proper accommodations should certainly be provided for colored cooks and servants, as the accommodations at this camp were very inadequate, as they have also been at former camps.

Laterines—In this connection I believe that the most practicable and most satisfactory kind are those provided with water-tight boxes or troughs, and so arranged that they can be readily cleaned every night, and the contents hauled away in a water-tight cart constructed for that particular purpose; after the troughs have been cleaned they should be thoroughly sprinkled with lime. Laterines constructed on these lines are much less offensive than trenches, especially if they happen to strike water, as was the case at Camp John S. Saunders.

Very respectfully,

SAMUEL J. BLIGHT,

Acting Asst. Chief Quartermaster 1st Brigade, M. N. G.

Report of First Lieut. Albert E. Glocker, M. N. G., Retired, Inspector of Guards at Camp John S. Saunders.

BALTIMORE, MD., October 10, 1903.

To the Adjutant-General, First Brigade, M. N. G.

SIR: I have the honor to report that in obedience to G. O., No. 14 C. S., Headquarters First Brigade, M. N. G., I made a daily inspection of the guard of the several regiments and the First Separate Company at Camp John S. Saunders from July 9 to 19, inclusive, and respectfully make the following comments:

The first day in camp guard duty was performed in a very careless manner; the men had received no instructions as to their duty, or if they had it was very evident that some of them did not understand what they were there for.

On the second day, and every morning after guard mount, I visited the guard tent and had a talk with the non-commissioned officers and men on the duty of sentinels on post; how to carry the piece, when and how to salute, and recommended that they hold school when not on posts; discuss among themselves points on which they did not understand, etc.

My suggestions were acted on, and with good results, as I saw decided improvement in the afternoons on my second round, and think if the companies could have gone on guard again there would have been little or no cause for adverse criticism.

Several of the companies did very well, showing that they had received some instructions in the armories, among which I would mention Companies "B" and "K," of the Fourth Regiment; "F," "I" and "G," of the First Regiment, and "I," "M," and "C," of the Fifth Regiment. These companies had less newly enlisted men than the others, and most of the non-commissioned officers were South during the Spanish-American War.

The First Separate Company was excellent; at first they were a little slow in turning out the guard for the General, but on the whole the men took much interest in their work, and great pride in their personal appearance.

Very respectfully,

ALBERT E. GLOCKER,

First Lieut. Retired, M. N. G.

Report of Commanding Officer First Infantry, on Encampment at Belair, Md., August 1902,

HEADQUARTERS FIRST REGIMENT INFANTRY, M. N. G.,

HAGERSTOWN, MD., August 19, 1902.

To the Adjutant-General, First Brigade, M. N. G.,

Baltimore, Md.

SIR: I have the honor to submit the following report with reference to the encampment held at Belair, Md., in August, 1902

The different companies of the regiment left their homes as per orders published, and all arrived in Baltimore on schedule time except the companies from Easton and Salisbury, which were delayed about fifteen minutes. This caused the departure from Baltimore for Belair to be about fifteen minutes later than schedule time, but this was unavoidable. Upon arrival at Belair the regiment was formed and marched to the camp ground as a whole, and the respective companies assigned to their quarters. Upon the following morning, Sunday, the regiment was thoroughly inspected, and the uniforms and equipments in most cases found to be in good condition. On Monday morning the actual work of the camp was begun and the order of daily duty strictly adhered to. In all the drills and movements of the troops no effort was made at display or show. Instructions were given to majors and captains before attempts were made to execute movements with which they were not acquainted, and these were repeated from time to time until all the officers became thoroughly acquainted with them. Every effort was made to teach the officers and men how to do things rather than to find out whether they were able to do them. I am pleased to report that all the officers of the regiment entered into the work with a zest and enthusiasm worthy of recommendation, and all seemed to be striving to do the very best for the welfare of the regiment. The men also took up the same spirit and the result of the week's good work was apparent to every one at the end of the encampment.

The conduct of the men during the entire week, both in camp and out of camp, was excellent. Only two or three cases of intoxication were noticed in the entire regiment. But one man was confined in the guard-house during the encampment, and the offense for which he was thus punished was of a trivial character.

In order to have all men in camp by eleven o'clock at night, each night at half-past nine a patrol of eight men, in charge of a commissioned officer, was sent to Belair to see that all soldiers left the town at such hour as to be able to reach camp before eleven o'clock and to put under arrest any soldiers that might be behaving in a disorderly manner. We had no occasion to arrest any one.

Special attention was paid to the cleanliness of the camp from the time the regiment entered camp until it left; and before marching out the entire camp was thoroughly policed and left in the same condition in which it was found. We think we are not exaggerating when we say that the camp was one of the cleanest in the history of the State encampments.

Special attention was also paid to guard-mounting and the instructions of the guards as to their duties. Capt. Samuel Riggs was detailed for this purpose, and under his excellent instructions great improvement was noticed in this department.

I desire to call special attention to the manner in which the men were fed. I am informed by Captain Pusey that the cost of feeding the regiment was less than twenty-three cents per man per day. The men had plenty of food, and were all satisfied. Captain Pusey, the commissary officer, gave to each captain a printed suggestion as to his bill of fare for each day. This was an excellent idea, and was of great assistance to the captain in varying the food given to the men each day. Upon arrival in camp two men from each company were detailed as a hospital corps, but of this there was very little need. The health of the officers and men during the entire encampment was excellent, and only two or three persons were entered in the hospital during the entire week, and none of these were seriously ill.

The camp grounds were well suited for the purpose, with the exception of the ground occupied by one row of tents on the right flank. During several showers of rain they were submerged, and had to be abandoned; otherwise the camp ground answered the purpose admirably.

I desire to call attention to the excellent arrangement of the kitchens. Two files of large tents were used at each kitchen as a covering for the same, and were found to answer the purpose very well. They were far better than the sheds that are sometimes erected for this purpose, inasmuch as the kitchens will be kept cleaner with a simple covering like the ones used in this encampment, than if there is a boxed-up shed with corners and holes in which to store away refuse matter. With the present arrangement the interior of the entire kitchen can be seen at a glance, and cleanliness thus be secured without much trouble.

I feel that the regiment, its officers and men, were greatly benefited by the encampment, and believe that the work of the week will have a lasting benefit upon the discipline, drill and conduct of the regiment in future.

The regiment broke camp on Saturday morning, three companies leaving early in the day so as to be able to reach home that night, while the remaining companies did not leave camp until about mid-day. All the companies, so far as our information goes, reached their respective armories, according to the orders published and on schedule time, where the men were paid off for their week's service. None of the men were paid in camp, as we deemed it better that they should be paid after their arrival at their respective homes.

Very respectfully,

C. A. LITTLE,

Colonel Commanding First Regiment.

Report of the Commanding Officer, Naval Brigade.

DECEMBER 22, 1903.

SIR: I have the honor to submit my report for the years ending 1902 and 1903.

The work of the Brigade you will see by the appended report of my executive officer.

This Brigade has been hampered by insufficient funds to properly uniform and equip it. In September, 1902, a division at Sparrow's Point, Md., was added to this Brigade, which needed uniforms and equipment. Although the citizens at Sparrow's Point gave their local division an armory, it became our duty to pay for the heating, lighting and other expenses, and our present appropriation falls far short of giving this State all it should have in Naval Militia.

In November, 1903, a division was formed at Cambridge, Md., and are drilling with accoutrements furnished from this Brigade, and are only waiting to be mustered in, uniformed and equipped to be part of the Naval Brigade, M. N. G. I sincerely trust that you can see your way clear to order this additional force.

Maryland stands third in the Naval Militia of the United States in point of efficiency, and in order to keep it there or to go further our funds must be increased.

I, therefore, respectfully request that you apply for an appropriation of $12,000 per year to pay the expenses of this Brigade for the next two years.

Respectfully, your obedient servant,

EDWIN GEER, Commander,

Commanding Naval Brigade, M. N. G.

To Adjutant-General, Annapolis, Md.

Report of the Executive Officer, Naval Brigade.

HEADQUARTERS NAVAL BRIGADE, M. N. G.,

BALTIMORE, December 1, 1903,

SIR: I respectfully submit the following report as executive officer of the Naval Brigade, M. N. G., for the years 1902 and 1903.

The condition of the United States steamer Dale remains about the same as in my last report. She has been painted and installed with electric lights. During the time she was anchored off Love Point, in July, 1903, she proved seaworthy, as far as the purpose of using her for quarters for men during the cruise was concerned.

The United States steamer Sylvia was put in dry dock last spring, where her engines were overhauled, electric wiring was renewed, and other repairs and improvements were made. Her condition is materially improved since she came from the dry dock.

The United States steamer Sylvia has been put out of commission for the winter, and all small boats are cleaned, scraped, painted and housed for the winter months.

During September, 1902, a division consisting of three (3) officers and forty-five (45) petty officers and men was mustered in at Sparrow's Point, Md. This division has an armory at Sparrow's Point, where they drill once a week.

The United States steamer Sylvia made a cruise to Atlantic City and return, the cruise lasting from August 9 to August 17, 1902. The ship was manned by seven (7) officers and forty (40) men. Much valuable experience was acquired during this cruise.

From July 9 to July 19, 1903, the Brigade was at Love Point, Md., on its summer cruise. The crew of the United States steamer Sylvia consisted of seven (7) officers and forty-five (45) petty officers and men. The crew of the United States steamer Dale consisted of fourteen (14) officers and eighty-eight petty officers and men. The crews of the United States steamer Siren and United States steamer Restless, from the Norfolk Navy Yard, and of the United States steamer Sheerwater, Naval Force of Pennsylvania, acted with this Brigade in signal and boat work, target practice and artillery drills.

During the summers of 1902 and 1903 the United States steamer Sylvia made weekly cruises in the Chesapeake Bay, during which cruises ship routine, boat work and target practice were carried out.

Owing to the fact that the Brigade had no armory during most of the time since making my last report, we have found it difficult to do what should be desired in drilling; but having now secured Broadway Market Hall, we shall be able to perfect ourselves in artillery and infantry drills.

Respectfully; your obedient servant,

H. F. HARRISON,

Lieut. Commander and Executive Officer.

To Commander Edwin Geer,

Commanding Naval Brigade, M. N. G.

Report of Lieutenant-Colonel Walter Schuyler, United States Army, on Condition of National Guard of Maryland.

WASHINGTON, June 2, 1903.

To the Adjutant-General,

State of Maryland, Annapolis, Md.

SIR: I have the honor to call your attention to the following remarks made by Lieutenant-Colonel W. S. Schuyler, Second Cavalry, of a special inspection of the organized Militia of the State of Maryland, under orders of the Secretary of War, on the 27th day of April, 1903, to the 13th day of May, 1903:

The equipment of the Maryland National Guard is nearly complete, requiring only shelter tents to make it quite so. Both armament and equipment are in good condition. The administration is well organized and excellent, both the Adjutant-General's office and the Brigade headquarters showing correct methods and all evidence of painstaking devotion to the interest of the Guard and of the State.

The First Regiment is composed of eleven companies, located in ten places throughout the State. The quarters for the companies are rented, and in several cases are too contracted for the normal formation of a company for inspection, or even for the proper care of equipment.

As the maintenance of a Militia company depends largely upon the club feature, and as its efficiency requires space for training, it will be manifestly to the interest of the State to make better provisions for this regiment and also for the Separate Company in Baltimore.

The personnel of the Guard is good. The officers, as a rule, are intelligent and interested, but need the stimulus of a compulsory and methodically applied course of instruction. While the majority of the officers appear accustomed to command, and some are unusually efficient, there is a considerable number who do not appear well enough informed to insure proper instruction of their men. This gives rise to the suggestion that no officer, however appointed or elected, should receive a commission until he has satisfactorily passed an examination before a non-partisan board, the membership of which should not be confined to the regiment in which he is to serve, but should include officers unaffected by any special interest in or political influences of that regiment. The board might well be a somewhat large one, say seven members, and sit at Brigade headquarters. The examination should include practice as well as theory and the candidate required to command an organization in the presence of the board. Any officer already holding a commission, if reported incompetent, should be ordered before this central board.

It appears that for some reason the State does not derive sufficient benefit from the military training given in the two schools which are more or less dependent upon State patronage, namely: St. John's and the Maryland Agricultural College. The Guard is strengthened by a small number of graduates who appear among the officers, and to secure a large number it would seem that an effective method might be devised.

The enlisted men vary much as to their physical development. The Fifth Regiment draws recruits chiefly from offices. The Fourth has a larger proportion of mechanics. The First represents more or less the rural element. Men of city occupation lack the ruddy color and sturdy look of the dwellers on the farm or in the small town, and the man accustomed to desk work rarely looks fit to carry a pack. Each regiment and every company has a number of men less than twenty years of age, and evidently not yet fully developed physically. In the detailed company reports I have referred to these men as more or less unfit for hard service by reason of immaturity. Experience in recent operations has shown that such men cannot stand a soldier's work, and quickly become invalidated. At the same time immediate service is not the expectation of the Militia, and the object of its maintenance is chiefly to train men for future emergencies. The youth from eighteen to twenty-one has more adaptability, more enthusiasm, and, what is quite as important, more time than the older man, and it is to the interest of the State and of the General Government to encourage his enlistment. However, the line should be rigidly drawn at eighteen years as a minimum, and examining surgeons should reject boys whose physical development is below the normal or who may be suspected of exaggerating their ages for the purpose of securing acceptance as recruits.

I am of the opinion that one very strong influence against the retention of good men in the Guard is the failure of the officers to impart sufficiently correct and varied instruction in military matters. The unvaried assemblies in the armory are likely to become stale and discouraging. The most enthusiasm is found in the companies which have the most work to do.

As indicating lack of interest the following summary is illuminating:

Average Number of Enlisted Men in Companies.

First Regiment.....	49
Fourth Regiment.....	43
Fifth Regiment.....	42

Average Number Present at Inspection.

First Regiment.....	32
Fourth Regiment.....	29
Fifth Regiment.....	35

Average Number Present at Drill During Current Season.

First Regiment.....	27
Fourth Regiment.....	25
Fifth Regiment.....	28

The companies of the city regiments report the number of drills as upward of forty per annum, yet inspection failed to show that the men had been taught more than floor marching and the manual of arms. The companies contain both officers and men who have had valuable training in the volunteers and who should be competent instructors in many things. * * * The corporals, when interrogated, almost invariably stated that they had no experience in drilling squads.

Two suggestions are here submitted for the improvement of the service:

First. The major should be required to make semi-annual inspections of the companies of his battalion. He should be held responsible for their instruction and for the proper observance in each of the following regulations. He should pay especial attention to the instruction of the officers, and be strenuous in requiring the maintenance of the Non-Commissioned Officers' School.

Second. It would seem that the companies could be made much more effective military organizations if a group system could be adopted, which would make the corporals the actual leaders of their squads, responsible to some extent for their recruitment, their training, and the observance by the men of their obligations. The following is outlined as a solution of this problem: Let the normal organization of the company be in six squads, each squad (or group) to consist of one corporal and seven (7) privates, there being one duty sergeant for each section of two squads, the sergeant to have some responsibility for the condition of the squads of his section. The corporal to be the drill-master of his squad, and, under the supervision of the sergeant, its instructor not only in the "school of the soldier," but in the care and adjustment of equipment, in the personal bearing of the soldier and in gymnastic training, but especially in target practice and the preliminary exercises pertinent thereto. The corporal should be in constant touch with his men and should be more or less responsible for their recruitment. He should be on the lookout for men of high physical standard and otherwise desirable, so that when a vacancy occurs in the ranks of his squad he can procure a proper recruit to fill it. He should know at all times where his men are to be found, so that they can be promptly notified of a sudden call to duty. In case one of the men changes his residence to a distance his squad leader should be cognizant of it, and be prepared to recommend discharge if he finds within a reasonable time that the absence is likely to be permanent. In case a man absents himself without leave and fails to either appear for drill or to communicate with his corporal, or his captain, for a period comprising two entire calendar months of the drill season, he should be discharged. If the number of privates in a squad fall below five (5) and remain so for two calendar months or over, the privates should be incorporated in other squads and the number of corporals in the company be reduced by one. If expansion of the company be desired the addition should be made by squads, the number of corporals and sergeants being increased accordingly. Competition between squads should be encouraged, especially in target practice and gymnastics. So far as practicable the men of a squad should be of one locality and not depend upon the central armory as their only rallying point. There are few localities outside the cities where a group of eight (8) men could not find a place to drill occasionally, and to practice target firing to their own delectation and their military improvement.

The above remarks, while suggested by the situation of the regiment whose companies are widely scattered, applies also to the city regiments, and with the added comment that the advantage of the large armories for varied instruction should not be ignored.

Target practice has not received sufficient interest and attention in Maryland through failure to provide proper State ranges. * * * * * The uselessness of equipping the Militia with an expensive weapon without teaching the use of it is apparent without demonstration, and no doubt the State will, at this beginning of a new era, make provision for one or more target ranges, safe, modern and fully equipped.

In conclusion I desire to express my opinion that the National Guard of Maryland is a well-managed organization, completely armed and equipped within the purview of Section 14, of the Act approved January 21, 1903, entitled "An Act to promote the efficiency of the Militia and for other purposes," and that both by its history and its appearance it gives promise of continued progress in the direction of efficiency.

Very respectfully,

J. PARKER,

*Lieut. Col. Thirteenth Cavalry,
Acting Asst. Adjutant-General.*

Report of Major John F. Guilfoyle and Captain Horace M. Reeve, U. S. A., on Results Obtained by First Brigade, M. N. G., at Camp John S. Saunders, Belair, Md., July 9 to 19, 1903.

JULY 20, 1903.

To the Adjutant-General, United States Army, War Department, Washington, D. C.

SIR: We have the honor to submit the following report on the encampment of the organized Militia of the State of Maryland, held at Belair, Md., July 9 to 19, 1903, which we attended in compliance with S. O. 154, Headquarters of the Army, A. G. O., c. s.

The Governor not being at Annapolis, we were advised by the Adjutant-General of the State to go to Baltimore, which we did, and reported to the Governor through the Adjutant-General. We then proceeded to Belair, arriving there July 8.

We informed the Adjutant-General and also Brigadier-General Riggs, commanding the encampment, that we wished to render to the Militia all the instruction and other assistance possible.

In compliance with instructions from the War Department we make the following report relative to the organized Militia of Maryland:

The Militia of Maryland is organized into one Brigade.

The strength of the troops attending the encampment varied slightly from day to day, but it averaged about 156 officers and 1,655 enlisted men. (Brigade morning report is hereto appended and marked "A.")

1. The officers and troops were:

Brigadier-General Lawrason Riggs, commanding, and staff.
Detachment Signal Corps.

Troop "A" (mounted), Captain J. W. Shirley.

First Regiment, Maryland National Guard, Colonel Charles A. Little.

Fourth Regiment, Maryland National Guard, Colonel Willard Howard.

Fifth Regiment, Maryland National Guard, Colonel Henry M. Warfield.

First Separate Company (colored), Captain W. R. Spencer.

2. The officers are elected; the company officers are elected by their men; the field officers are elected by the company officers; the Brigadier-General is elected by the regimental commanders.

Staff officers are appointed by the officers upon whose staffs they are to serve.

Company officers and regimental and battalion staff officers are examined by boards appointed by their regimental commanders. Field officers and brigade staff officers are examined by boards appointed by the Brigade Commander, who in turn is examined by a board appointed by the Adjutant-General of the State.

The Adjutant-General is appointed by the Governor for four years, or to complete an unexpired term. He receives a salary of $2,000 per annum, and is the only officer who receives a yearly salary from the State for military services.

3. The ambulance corps has three ambulances fully equipped. The Hospital Corps men are assigned to the Fourth and Fifth Regiments. The Fourth Regiment has 44 men so attached, of whom 30 were brought to the encampment. The Fifth Regiment has 50 men so attached, of whom 28 attended the encampment.

This corps makes a good appearance and doubtless would prove efficient if their services were needed. Many of the members are medical students, and all of them have received lectures and attended clinics.

4. The Signal Corps has recently been reorganized. It consists of one sergeant and 8 men (5 of whom attended the encampment). The sergeant is an ex-sergeant of the United States Signal Corps. The men are all practical electricians. The corps is equipped with signal flags, 2 heliographs, 10 telephones, 4 miles of wire and 1 twenty-"phone" switch-board.

5. There is no regular army officer attached to the organized Militia of Maryland.

6. There are no military or advisory boards.

7. The encampment of the Brigade takes place every two years. The First Regiment goes into camp every year. The duration of the encampment is usually one week; this year was eleven days. There is no camp-ground owned by the State. The practice has been to lease such ground as was desired for the time the ground was actually used. This year the encampment was held at Belair, a small town about twenty five miles north of Baltimore, on the Maryland and Pennsylvania Railroad.

The camp was located on a tract of land about 80 acres in extent. The camp site was about a mile and a half from the railroad station. Water was obtained by pipes connected with the water supply of the town. Bathing facilities were not good, and a few shower baths were constructed. The locality has a reputation for healthfulness.

On account of the restricted area this camp site is not available for extended manœuvres, the camp ground being surrounded by farms containing growing crops, fences, etc. It is an inadequate place for more than a small Brigade, and such a Brigade can only hold field exercises by courtesy of neighboring farmers.

Troops E and H, Second Cavalry, Major Bloxsom, were encamped with the National Guard. The presence of these two troops was very beneficial, the officers giving instruction and assistance when possible to do so.

8. (a.) Baltimore is the proper point of concentration for service out of State, on account of its central location, its railroad and water facilities, and because it is the station of two regiments.

(b.) Two-thirds of the force can be mobilized for service out of the State in six hours; the remainder of the troops in from six to twelve hours. About 80 per cent. would probably turn out for sixty days' service.

The National Guard of Maryland has not been called upon to perform any active duty during the past year.

9. The annual State appropriation for the National Guard of Maryland is $50,000, out of which sum is paid the salary of the Adjutant-General and the expenses of his office.

10. From the national appropriation the State of Maryland this year received for military purposes about $16,000.

11. The armament consists of:

- 101 revolvers, Colt, cal. .38.
- 38 revolvers, Smith & Wesson, cal. .38.
- 103 cavalry sabres.
- 30 carbines, U. S. Magazine, cal. .30.
- 181 rifles, U. S. Magazine, cal. .30, with equipments.
- 1923 rifles, Springfield, cal. .45, with equipments.

The Fifth Regiment Veteran Reserve Corps has:

- 1 Gatling gun.
- 165 rifles, Winchester.

There is no artillery. At the inspection, July 11, the Springfield rifles were found to be in a poor state of preservation.

12. The troops were properly armed and equipped for the field with but exceptions, i. e., a few rifles were unserviceable, the shoes worn by some of the men would stand but little field service. Each man had ten rounds of blank ammunition. On account of the season only a number of overcoats sufficient for the guard duty were brought to camp.

13. The entire Guard is furnished with two sets of uniform, i. e., the blue undress, such as recently used by United States troops, and the khaki. Campaign hats and leggings were worn.

The Fourth and Fifth Regiments have each a special regimental full dress. The distinctive insignia of the Maryland National Guard is the coat-of-arms of Maryland, worn as collar ornaments and on buttons.

It is our impression that the National Guard desires a uniform similar to that adopted for the regular troops, but with some addition to the uniform distinctive of the State of Maryland. The seals of the several States are, as a rule, complicated in design, not generally known, and do not lend themselves to military decorations; and, when placed merely on buttons and blouse collars, are not sufficiently distinctive.

There have been issued 2,300 suits of blue uniform, and 2,300 suits of khaki uniform.

There are held in reserve 250 blouses, blue; 210 trousers, blue; 300 suits, khaki; 600 leggings, pairs; 125 blankets; 70 hats, campaign; 200 shirts, blue.

No horses are owned by the State. Horses and mules are hired as occasion requires. A few of the officers own their mounts. Some of the members of Troop "A" own their mounts. Each trooper receives $1 per month if he attends drills.

The horses to mount officers are hired in and around Baltimore. When in camp the animals are sheltered in neighboring barns and in large tents. Forage is furnished by the State.

15. There is no artillery in this Guard, and as the Springfield rifles will be almost immediately turned in when the United States magazine rifles, caliber .30, is issued, the State must be furnished with an adequate supply of new ammunition.

16. (a) Tentage: 1,200 common tents; 175 wall tents and flies; 95 hospital tents; 600 complete shelter tents.

(b) Mess outfits: 2,200 mess outfits (tin cups, meat ration cans, knives, forks and spoons); 2,300 canteens; 2,300 haversacks.

Brigade headquarters, regimental headquarters and each company is supplied with a field cooking range. Civilian cooks are hired to prepare meals.

17. All officers who have any accountability are bonded, and are held to strict account.

18. When in camp the command did not use the United States ration. No subsistence stores are kept on hand, but when troops go into camp an amount sufficient to last a week or ten days is contracted for. This year the average price of subsisting an enlisted man was 23 cents per day. His ration contained at one time or other the following components: Fresh meat, mutton, bacon, corn meat, cabbage, onions, tomatoes, rice, canned peas, fresh bread, coffee and sugar.

19. When in camp or called into service the officers receive the same pay as do officers of the same grade and length of service in the regular army.

The daily pay of enlisted men in first enlistment is: First sergeant and non-commissioned staff, $1.75; sergeant, $1.50; corporal, $1.25; private, $1.00.

The term of enlistment is three years and the pay of enlisted men is increased 10% for each re-enlistment.

21. Guard mounting was held each day in each regiment, dress parade by regiment every day, weather permitting. Troops were drilled daily, weather permitting, in battalion and regimental close order drills, extended order, and were exercised in outpost advance guard, and there were two contact problems. Troops were exercised not only in the forenoon but also in the afternoon. The regular cavalry gave exhibition drills and took part in the field exercises.

On the 17th instant the command was reviewed by the Governor of Maryland.

At the home stations each organization is drilled once each week from 8.00 P.M. until 10.00 P.M., from October 1 until June 1, unless the troops are to be encamped, in which case the drills are continued until the date of making camp. The drill is by squad, company and battalion. Facilities for such drills vary. The First Regiment, recruited from all points of the State except Baltimore, cannot assemble more than two companies together oftener than once a year. Sometimes companies in the smaller towns are enabled to drill out of doors. The Fifth Regiment has an armory with a drill floor 300 feet by 200 feet. The troops in Baltimore usually take part in street parades once or twice a year.

22. It is the object of the State authorities to try to bring this command up to the regular army standard as regards the physical qualifications of the men. This, however, in any National Guard organization is very difficult to obtain.

23. An officers' school is held twice a month.

24. Guard duty was fairly well performed, except that there was a noticeable deficiency in the manner of salutes and other courtesies rendered by sentinels and guards, and general watchfulness. This was due to ignorance rather than intention. Outpost duty on a large scale was taught.

25. There has been no target practice for some time. The State has just secured a range at Glenburnie, about twelve miles from Baltimore.

26. There are three ambulances fully equipped. Troop "A" has one large wagon. When required, mules are hired for the above. All other land transportation is hired as occasion demands. The Pennsylvania Railroad and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad run through the State, and each enters the point of Militia rendezvous (Baltimore). The State is also entered by the Chesapeake Bay—a transport drawing twenty-five feet can be loaded at Baltimore. Annapolis is another port of this State.

27. All books required by paragraph 294, Army Register, are kept.

28. It would not be practicable to adopt the entrance physical examination of the regular army. It is already difficult to obtain recruits; for the National Guard to adopt the regular army standard would be to impose a restriction which would make it still more difficult to maintain a National Guard. Of the members of the Maryland National Guard who were examined for the United States service in 1898, only about 50 per cent. were able to pass the physical examination. We are unable to state in what respect this standard should be modified to enable the United States to muster the Guard into service as it stands without danger to the integrity of the pension list.

29. The instructors placed themselves at the disposal of all officers to answer questions or to render such assistance as might be requested. Criticisms and suggestions were offered to officers at Brigade headquarters, and to all officers when deemed advisable.

Special attention was given to the field exercises, advance and rear guard formation, outpost duty, formations for attack and for defense. In such cases the instructors accompanied the troops in the field and gave such instruction as was possible. The officers were assembled three or more times to listen to talks on military subjects. Major Guilfoyle delivered a talk on the subject of "Advance Guard and Outpost Duty." Captain Reeve addressed them on the subject of "Topography and Military Field Engineering" and "Modern Ordnance." The field exercises performed by the command were also criticised.

30. The water supply was excellent; a pipe line connected the camp with the town water system. Since the installation of this system typhoid fever has been unknown in the town.

Garbage was hauled away daily by a contractor. The sinks were in small frame structures erected at some distance from each regimental camp. They were not near the mess tents nor in sight of them. The sinks at first were inadequate, but this was remedied by a daily removal of the excreta. The camp was well policed and kept clean. Boiled water was not used, as its use was thought to be unnecessary.

31. It is recommended that if agreeable to the State authorities a regular army officer be detailed with the National Guard of Maryland, that throughout the year systematic and progressive instruction be given to the officers with special view to field exercises, infantry combat formation, utilization of terrain for military ends, logistics, etc.; that regular troops be encamped with the National Guard whenever possible.

32. The sentiment of the Guard is one of compliance with Sections 4, 5 and 7, Militia Act. The gist of these sections is embodied in the enlistment oaths taken by each man, and the possible phases of service made operative by these sections were carefully explained to each man.

33. Remarks: The majority of the troops were in camp for eleven days, but as the first and last days were occupied in making and breaking camp they were not available for drills and field exercises. In addition, one Sunday and two rainy days were not available for military work. This left six days (in two years) to be utilized for military field exercises. This is a great misfortune under which the Guard must labor, as eleven days is about the limit of time which members can get excused from their usual occupations, and before troops can be put to work at contact problems and similar exercises they should have had experience in extended order, advance and rear guard exercises, outpost formations, and similar exercises which cannot be taught in an armory. This limitation of time is made still more embarrassing by the fact that the enlisted personnel is continually changing. Fifty per cent. of the troops this year had never before been in camp.

The troops exhibited excellent discipline; there was no brawling; they were worked hard, tried to learn, and kept their camp in an excellent state of police.

The instructors were shown every courtesy, and every facility was offered for the inspection of the camp and the troops in field exercises; a general interest in the latter was awakened in both officers and men, this being the first time in the history of the Guard that such instruction had been attempted.

We were busily employed with the Guard for eleven days, but time and opportunity did not admit of our knowing enough about the capabilities of each of the one hundred and sixty officers in camp to admit of report upon them being made which would be fair to all, and such a report cannot even be attempted.

However, the work of the following officers came directly under our observation, and their efficiency in their various positions was very marked:

1. Brigadier-General Lawrason Riggs, commanding.
2. First Lieutenant E. L. Woodside, A. D. C.
3. First Lieutenant W. B. Cockey, A. D. C.
4. Colonel C. D. Gaither, Acting Adjutant-General, First Brigade.
5. Colonel C. A. Little, First Regiment.
6. Colonel C. F. Macklin, Inspector-General.
7. Major S. S. Ulrich, Fourth Regiment.
8. Major S. W. Fort, Chief Ordnance Officer.
9. Major Frank Coale, Chief Commissary.
10. Major C. V. Starkloff, Chief Paymaster.

Major-General J. S. Saunders, Adjutant-General, was present during the encampment, but did not exercise command. This officer is a graduate of the United States Military Academy, and served during the Civil War. He has labored earnestly for the good of the National Guard of Maryland, and the results of his efficiency and experience are manifest. The present status of the Guard respecting armament, equipment, discipline and general interest is largely due to the efforts of General Saunders.

The Guard is also fortunate in having General Lawrason Riggs in command of the Brigade. He is studious and energetic, maintains good discipline, and labors to develop his organization along modern and progressive lines. These qualities, together with his general character as a gentleman, cannot but be reflected in many of his subordinates.

Very respectfully,

(Signed)

JOHN F. GUILFOYLE,
Major Twelfth Cavalry.
